

Questions on Facing West from California's Shores by Walt Whitman:

1. What is indicated by the various references to places in "Facing West from California's Shores"? What is the speaker's attitude toward Asia? Toward America? How does the speaker relate to place?
2. Why is the speaker "very pleased and joyous" (9)?
3. In what ways might the speaker be interpreted as representative of humanity?